We have resolved the commenting request. The public page is still invite only for posting and still allows comments but those comments only are seen by the admin(s) of the page, which is just me for now.

We can go live with the post tonight or first thing tomorrow morning. I will send over the link once it's live.

I read through the document and I think it will resonate well. I have an idea leveraging a software update that we recently built that I think can represent both a powerful publication tool as well as a sustainable ‘community’ focused on “Investors for Truth” - ‘A member-based, but publicly accessible forum for institutional investors and asset managers to share diligence around fraudulent corporations and their business practices.’

I’m free to discuss at your convenience.
